Item Description FIELD

Site Data

This field is under arable cultivation as has been used for cereal production. It is largely flat with a few low undulations. All the boundaries are post and wire fences with woodland on the west, north and east. Near the southern boundary at GR 434156 458166 is what appears to be a building platform consisting of a raised area of rough grass measuring about 8x10m which has been left unploughed. There are a few peices of brick and masonry lying beneath the turf. T he remains of an historic trackway , recorded on old maps, exist folowing the line of the eastern boundary.

History Summary

The field has remained unchanged from early 21st century until late 19th century but by mid 19th century the field has been absorbed to create a larger field.
