Item Description POND

Site Data

This feature is a small pond measuring 6x5 metres which appears to be a silt trap for the inflow from the culverted field drain 144, which is one of the water sources of Appleby Carr. It is situated on the west side of the main water between the shore line and a stone structure which is the termination of the drain and the conduit head. It is surrounded by bull rushes and other vegetation. There appears to be no sign of any formal edging.
